

DECISION-MAKING TOOL

The tool

One of the main challenges of finding new clients as an entrepreneur is deciding whether to take a new client or contract.

This is why we propose a tool to support new entrepreneurs in selecting missions and prioritising sustainable and strategic business development.

Description

Material required

A device with an internet connection.

Investment required

None.

Possible uses

You can use this tool to decide whether to take a specific contract or client or as part of your self-promotion efforts to target specific prospects as well.

Possible restriction

You might not agree with some of the conclusions of this decision-making tool. This is general advice, so feel free to adapt it to your own criteria!

Technical difficulty (skills needed): ★

Environmental Impact

The tool mentioned has a low environmental impact

The environmental impact of using this tool is negligible. However, as an entrepreneur, you can take into whether taking a new contract or client will have a significantly different environmental impact compared to your current activities. If you are unsure whether to take this new contract, it might either help you make your decision, or propose additional services to your client to make their practices greener!

Regarding learning disorders

We followed inclusive design best practices while creating this tool. Do not hesitate to adapt it to your own use or needs!

		Score
My skills	This project is in my core competency area.
	If not, this project allows me to learn or develop new skills.
Feasibility	The deadline is clear.
	The delivery deadline is realistic and feasible for me.
	The client 's expectations are clear and they have provided enough information for me to answer their expectations.
Budget	The budget is clear.
	The client is not only interested in the price or is not trying to push my prices down.
	The budget is appropriate for the project.
	If the budget is a bit lower than what I would accept, it allows me to develop a skill or to work for a cause I support.
Values	The client's brand values align with mine or those of my company.
Potential problems	Communication with the client is respectful and constructive.
	I am confident and at ease when communicating with the client, nothing seems off.
